

Professor Liu Chuntian Enlisted the IP's Most Influential People 2014

The world-class magazine #Managing Intellectual Property published the IP's Most Influential People 2014 (most influential 50 people of intellectual property in 2014) on the latest Jul-Aug magazine. Professor Liu Chuntian, President of China Intellectual Property Law Association, Dean of Intellectual Property Academy of Renmin University of China, was enlisted again after the first time in 2013, as the only representative of Chinese educational circle.

Unlike previous years, the 50 people were divided into 5 groups: Law(Judges, legislators, etc.), Business and Entertainment, Policy makers, Advocates and Social Media, to illustrate the unique influence of them.

Professor Liu was one of the 10 influential people in the Policymakers group, together with Francis Gurry, Director General of World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), Kerstin Jorna, Deputy Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO), etc.

The magazine read:" Liu.....has spent his academic life studying IP systems overseas in an effort to help Chinese policymakers develop a framework of laws that suit the country's own stage of development."

#The IP's Most Influential People is the most respected list of intellectual property filed. The listed are those who make the greatest contribution and lead the future of the intellectual property. Professor Liu's appearance on the list shows the achievement of the practice of intellectual property in China.
